Concept for mobile app

Deloitte

My role

Lead Product Designer

As the Lead Product Designer, I collaborated extensively with the Pre-Sales Manager, VP of Production, a Motion Designer, and two Engineers, spanning the realms of iOS and Android. Together, we meticulously formulated, designed, explored, and iterated upon UI concepts and interactive prototypes.

Challenge

How can we optimize financial transactions within a mobile chat application to minimize instances of real currency disbursement and promote secure, streamlined monetary exchanges?

Personas

Individuals seek expeditious and streamlined means of sending and receiving funds promptly.

Users who necessitate immediate financial transactions, such as payments, remittances, or receipts, often encounter substantial challenges when relying on physical currency. The traditional process proves to be sluggish, lacks security assurances, and is constrained by geographical limitations.

2023 / DMITRY TRUBNIKOV

User journeys

Having exceeded my budget, I reached out to a friend for assistance after overspending.

I intend to provide monthly financial support to my elderly grandmother.

Amanda urgently requested my assistance with rent payment matters at 1:00 AM. How can I promptly provide her the necessary help?

I aspire to manage all financial transactions through my mobile device, eliminating the need for cash transactions and optimizing time efficiency.

Conceptual Sketching (Transactional Currency Flow)

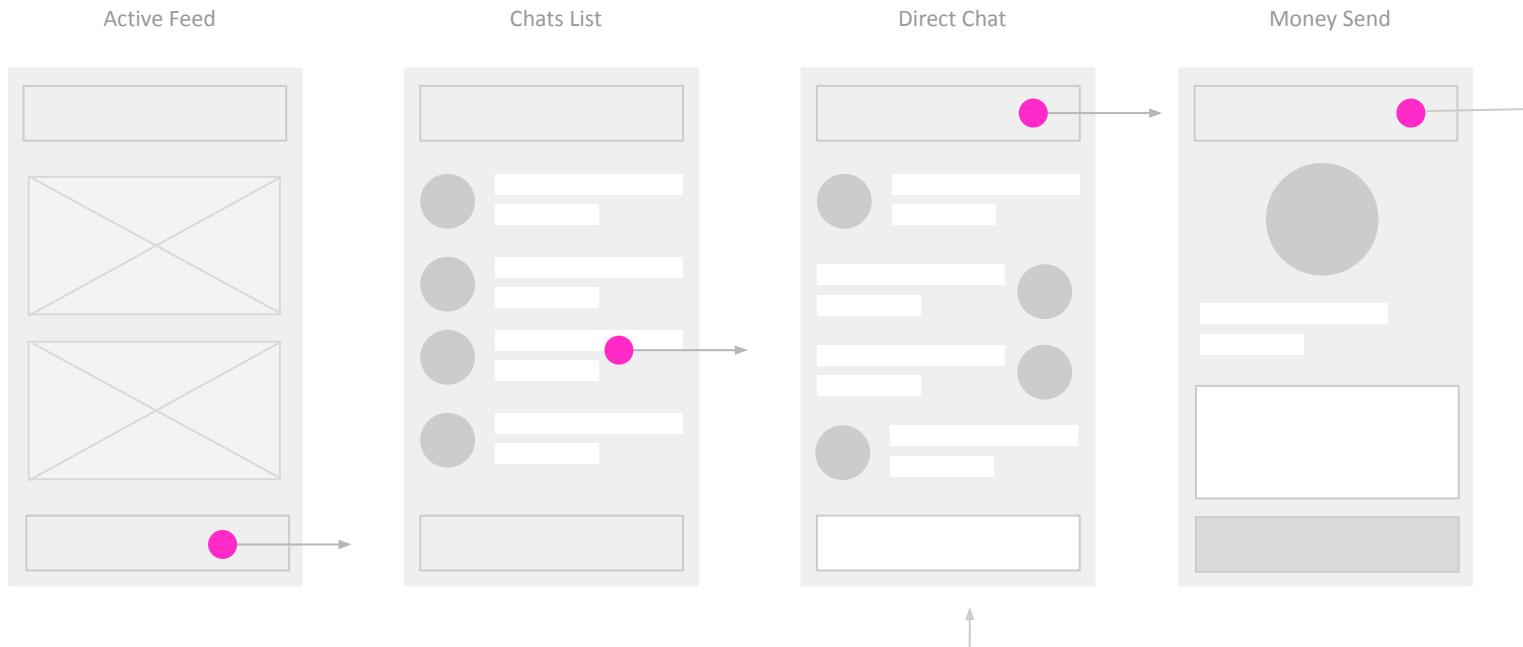

I meticulously developed various conceptual frameworks, engaging in productive brainstorming sessions with engineering and project management teams across multiple collaborative work sessions.

Several Screens Demonstrating Visual and Tactile Experience

I endeavored to achieve a balance of simplicity while adhering to Deloitte's guidelines in order to establish a strong brand association for the application.

The image displays three screenshots of a mobile application interface, likely a messaging or payment app, demonstrating visual and tactile design elements.

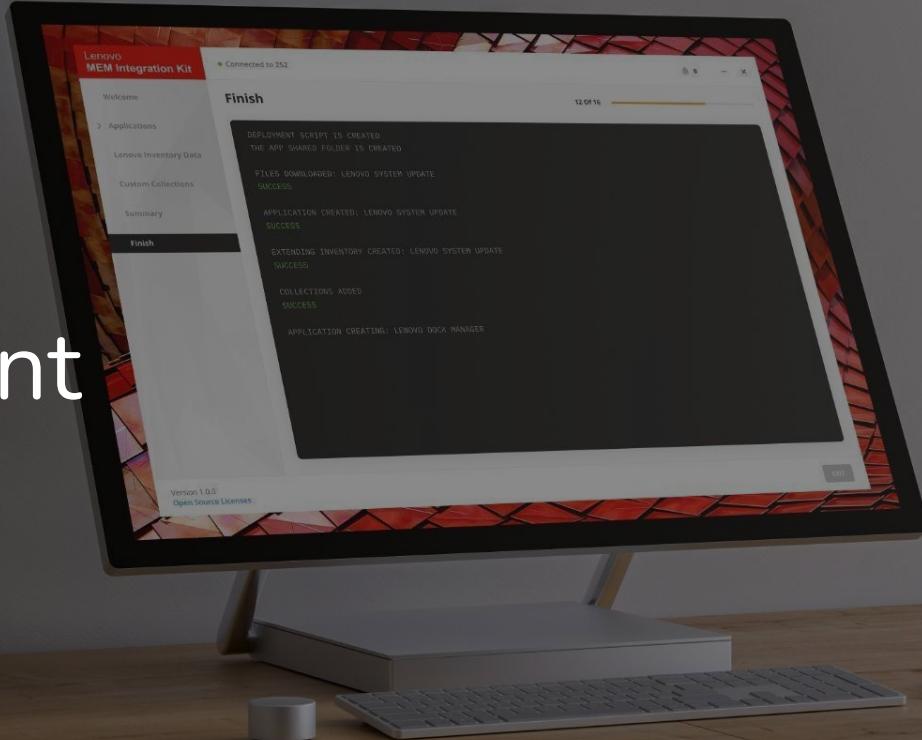

Screenshot 1: Home Screen
The background features a large, semi-transparent Deloitte logo with floating icons like clouds, people, and cards. A man sitting outdoors at night, holding a lit sparkler, is visible in the foreground. A green "SIGN IN" button is at the bottom.

Screenshot 2: Chat Screen
Shows a conversation with "Erick Scott" (online). The message "I thought I'd take an educated guess as to what a day spent with Wes Anderson in Paris." is displayed. Below it, a green button says "Transfer to Erick Scott $112.00 App Transfer".

Screenshot 3: Fund Wallet Screen
Shows a "Fund Wallet" screen with a "Personal" balance of "$1,758.45". It includes fields for "Amount ($)" and "Payment Method" (set to "Card Payment"). A large green "FUND" button is prominent. At the bottom is a numeric keypad with rows for 1-9 and 0, and a clear/cancel icon.

My Role

Lead UX/UI Designer

In collaboration with stakeholders, business analysts, and the development team, I engaged in a close-knit partnership to elucidate core features, subsequently formulating optimal UX concepts that seamlessly transitioned into UI implementation.

3D modeling, real physical world simulation platform for metal constructions and building

The screenshot displays a comprehensive 3D modeling and simulation platform for structural engineering. The interface is organized into several panels:

- Left Panel (LOAD CONTROL): Shows the project "16-B-83681" and various load categories: Project Code, Loads (selected), Live Load, Seismic Load, Snow Load, AUX Loads, Wind Load (selected), and Collateral Load.
- Middle Left Panel (BUILDINGS): Details the building code as 2015 IBC - Normal Building Occupying, site location as Houston, TX, 77079, and wind load parameters: Wind Load (90 mph), Deflection Wind Speed (72 mph), Wind Exposure Category (IBC) (C) Open Terrain, Enclosure Classification (IIBC) (Enclosed Building), Base Wind Elevation (0.0 ft), and a checkbox for "Apply All Height Primary Wind Load".
- Bottom Left Panel (NOTES): Includes a note about Topographic Effect CK2t (1.0).
- Main Modeling Area: A large 3D wireframe model of a building structure. The building has multiple levels and a complex roofline. Dimensions are labeled on the exterior walls: ~12.9, ~19.1, ~16.8, ~27.4, ~10.7, ~5.2, ~17.1, and ~25.8. A "Reference Corner" is indicated at the bottom left. A callout shows the "MWFRS Direction Being Evaluated" with an angle $\theta=10^\circ$. The interface includes "View Mode" buttons for Transverse and Longitudinal, and a "NOTES" section with a "Save as Template" button.
- Top Right Panel (Project Overview): Shows the project details (16-B-83681), report name (Calculations), and report types: Pricing Report, Calculations Report, Drawings Report. It also lists sections like BUILDINGS, LOAD CONTROL, and PROFILES.
- Right Side Panels: Includes a "DETAILS LEVEL" slider, a 3D wireframe view of the building's internal frame, a "GEOMETRY" panel showing building shapes and configurations, and a 2D plan view of the building structure with labels like RPA, SWG, EWD, RIC, RPE, GWD, BLDG-A, BLDG-B, SWH, and SWB.

Few words

It has been a real pleasure to work together with Dmitry. He has very strong work ethic and unparalleled analytical and problem solving skills.

He showed high level of UX, UI, Design technical skills and was a valuable contributor to our projects. I could always rely on him in setting the best standards as a Digital Product Designer. Definitely worth recommending.

Few words

Dmitry, creative genius, is one of the best designers that I've personally worked with. His pixel-perfect designs were a key reason that we could "sell" our projects before we had coded anything. Dmitry has continuously exhibited high level of independence, creativity, and collaboration.

One of his strongest skill is story telling. He actively used this skillset at Softeq along with research to illustrate the pain points faced by the users.
